London gold price down to $175 mark

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Gold prices dropped $10 an ounce today on the London bullion market to $175, nearly $5 an ounce from the record high of $180 reached late last week.

Dealers attributed the decline to disappointment over the American public's thin response to the lifting of the 41-year ban on their owning gold and to continuous profit taking.

Gold was fixed at $185.50, down $2.50 from its closing Tuesday and its lowest quotation since Dec. 19 when it was $183. On Monday, it has opened at $187.

Bullion dealers said the metal opened lower in London today after drifting down in America late Tuesday.

In Paris where gold touched $201.40 last week it dropped to $188 today. In Frankfurt it reached $186.02, down from the Dec. 31 price of $193.62. The Zurich market was closed today.

The dollar was slightly higher or unchanged on European markets but it still was at near record lows.

Watergate 4 promise appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The three most powerful men of Richard Nixon's administration, who stand convicted of conspiring to cover up their involvement in Watergate, today steadfastly maintained that they would prove their innocence on appeal.

Unlike some of their former colleagues now in prison, John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were far from contrite after the verdict was handed down Wednesday. They remained Sentencing was expected to be delayed during the appeals process. Mitchell could get 25 years in prison and a $17,000 fine; Haldeman, 25 years and $17,000; Ehrlichman, 20 years and $10,000; and Mardian, 5 years and $10,000.

The entire appeals process could last a long time and it could be months before any of the defendants go to jail if they are so sentenced.

The verdict came as no surprise to most of those who have been involved in the 2½-year-old scandal known as of the ailing former president, who was pardoned by President Ford.

Haldeman reflected the defendants' defiant reaction to the verdict when he declared, "I know that legally and morally I am totally innocent."

Ehrlichman, outspoken and unusually jovial today in a television interview, NBC Today Show, that when he was indicted nine months ago he was "pretty well convinced of the impossibility of securing an acquittal."

He said the few White House tapes played in the courtroom gave the jury a "warped view of what happened, but he admitted that if he had known about the taping system he "would have acted differently."

Referring to chief trial prosecutor James Earl Ray's contention that the cover-up was orchestrated by Nixon and the defendants, he added, "Actually, if you look at these five defendants, from my standpoint one of them I'd never met before, Ken Parkinson, another, one I hadn't seen for a couple of years, Bob Mardian, another one I saw perhaps four times over the span of the year that was in issue in the case, John Mitchell, and then on only a very casual basis. So if that was an orchestra, it never put together for a rehearsal."

Neither the original Watergate burglars nor those congressmen who investigated the scandal expressed surprise at the verdict.

But Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, a member of the House Judiciary Committee which voted to impeach Nixon as a result of Watergate, said she was still disturbed that the former President "has been placed beyond any accountability to our system of justice."

NY train collision injures 125

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two Penn Central commuter trains carrying 1,600 passengers collided today near the Botanical Gardens station in the Bronx, about six miles north of Grand Central Terminal in Manhattan, derailing five cars.

At least 125 persons were reported to have suffered minor injuries. One person was reported in serious condition.

A railroad spokesman said the incident occurred when the 10-car 7:55 a.m. train from Hartdale slowed its speed as it approached the station and was struck from behind by the six-car 7:57 train from North White Plains.

Nominated

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Housing Secretary James T. Lynn has been nominated as director of the Office of Management and Budget by President Gerald Ford.

If confirmed by the Senate, Lynn, 47, will succeed Roy L. Ash, who has resigned to return to private life. The change is the latest in the shuffling of Nixon advisers who have continued with the Ford administration.

Faisal gives $10 million quake aid

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — King Faisal has donated $10 million to Pakistan to aid the victims of Sunday's earthquake, Saudi newspapers said today.

Faisal made the donation following an appeal by Pakistani Premier Ali Bhutto, the newspapers said.

King Faisal said he was contributing the money to help alleviate the misery of the earthquake victims, the newspapers said.

He also called to the Pakistani government his sorrow over the tragedy.

IRA extends truce for 2 weeks

DUBLIN (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army today announced a two-week extension of its holiday cease-fire but said Britain's peace gesture in releasing or paroling 170 mostly IRA political prisoners was not enough for a permanent truce.

The announcement contradicted earlier reports from IRA sources in Belfast that the standstill would be extended by a month and indicated a division in the IRA leadership.

Arms given

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said today the Soviet Union, in a face-saving arrangement, for both sides, has agreed to send Egypt some weaponry despite their political rift.

But they said Moscow will not supply much wanted sophisticated offensive weapons on any notable scale, nor the superionic MIG 25 jets for some time to come.

Douglas' mind unimpaired, aide says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stroke suffered by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on New Year's Eve left him with a weakness in the left side of the body but no evidence of mental impairment, it was announced today.

(Earlier story, p. 8)

Supreme Court press officer Barrett McGurn in releasing the statement said the justice's condition continues to be officially termed "serious."

Newborn infant slain, discarded

By GEORGE WILEY

TWIN FALLS — The body of a newborn infant which had been stashed repeatedly was found Tuesday on an icy canal south of Twin Falls.

Sheriff Paul Corder said today the body of the newborn male was found Tuesday afternoon lying on the ice on the Lowline Canal about three miles south of Twin Falls.

According to Twin Falls Coroner Cloyce Edwards, the baby had been stashed 26 times.

Corder said there was no motive in not releasing the news of the homicide until this morning.

He said officers were busy with their investigation and inadvertently failed to notify news media following the discovery of the body. Corder said he had been unable to reach the various media over the New Year's holiday and thus withheld the information until all media could be notified uniformly.

The body of the newborn infant was found wrapped in a towel and newspapers and then placed in a paper bag, Corder said. He said the body was found beneath a bridge, 132 feet from the canal, about 100 feet from the canal.

The children notified their parents, who called the sheriff's office.

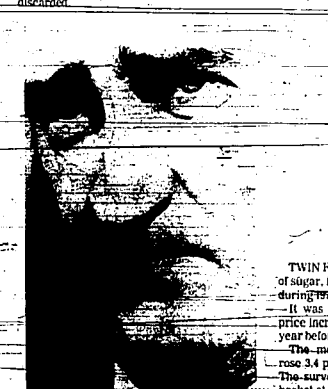

Corder said an autopsy performed Wednesday established the cause of death had been "multiple stab wounds."

The infant appeared to have been thrown onto the canal off the ice, or may have been thrown from a moving vehicle, Corder said, since the bag containing the body was lying in plain view.

Coroner Edwards said the baby was "fully developed" and not "premature" when found. He said it had been either shortly after birth as the umbilical cord and placental matter were still attached to the body.

Edwards said he counted 26 stab wounds in the heart and neck area of the body.

He said the body probably had been thrown onto the ice shortly after midnight Monday, because it was lying on top of the snow. It had stopped snowing at about midnight, Edwards said he guessed the infant's body had been tossed onto the ice shortly after its death because the package in which it was wrapped had "melted down into the ice about a quarter of an inch," indicating that body heat was present when the body was discarded.

Worried man

BOSTON SCHOOL Supt. William Leary looks somber after hearing today that the NAACP has filed suit to force the reopening of South High School after school officials postponed the reopening until Monday. The school has been the focus of racial trouble connected with student busing, and more violence is expected. (UPI)

Up in smoke

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters his New Year's resolution was to quit smoking and bragged that he had been successful for 10½ hours.

He chatted briefly in the press center here, then walked toward his office — unconsciously lighting a cigarette.

US factory orders show autumn drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New orders for manufactured products plunged 2 per cent in November, indicating continued weakness in the economy for at least the next few months, the Commerce Department reported today.

Factories lose their hiring and production schedules on the strength of new orders.

While new orders declined in November, inventories went up 7.3 per cent. The inventory accumulation precipitated widespread layoffs in November when the unemployment rate jumped from 6 to 6.5 per cent of the workforce.

Inventories grew five times faster than work in process during November, the Commerce figures showed. Inventories surged up $2 billion while work in process rose only $100 million.

The rapid inventory accumulation explains why labor was laid off in a wide range of industries in November, from auto assembly lines to jet-o-planes.

Commerce said new orders dropped $1.74 billion to $94.63 billion in November, capping a high of $4 cents in the previous three months.

While new orders were falling, shiftable orders of durable goods were also dropping, 1 per cent, as a result of the coal strike which slowed steel production.

Shipments of durable goods, also reflecting the coal strike, fell 4 per cent in November, Commerce said. Durable goods shipments were valued at $44.66 billion, down $1.87 billion from October.

Sugar was the super villain for shoppers in 1974. In February, a 10-pound sack was selling at an average of $11.71 at the five stores included in the survey.

The price increased in steady jumps every month until December when the survey revealed a minimal decline of 2.7 per cent in the cost since November.

But the December price — $5.52 for the same 10-pound sack — was still an astronomical 220 per cent higher than the price of last February.

On the other hand, ground beef declined considerably since last February when a pound was selling for an average of $1. The price now averages out at 64 cents a pound, an overall 38 per cent decrease from last winter's price.

One popular brand of bacon was averaging $1.41 last winter. During the year, the price declined to a low of $1.05; then jumped back up to a December average of $1.35.

The prices of eggs and potatoes were also available. Eggs reached a high of 84 cents a dozen last February, dropping off to an average cost in December of 78 cents a dozen.

And potatoes fluctuated wildly from a low of 88 cents for a 10-pound bag this November to a high of $1.90 for the same bag last June.

Subzero readings moderate over MV

TWIN FALLS — The New Year's Day cold spell with its subzero temperatures gave way to warmer temperatures and snow today.

It was 10 above at 8 a.m. today in the Twin Falls-Kimberly area, compared to 4 below zero Wednesday.

About half an inch of new snow fell Wednesday night, making a total accumulation of about 2 inches in the Twin Falls area.

More snow flurries, associated with another incoming weather system, are expected in the next few days, according to weatherman James Terry, Kimberly.

A new daily record low was set at the weather service office at the Boise airport Wednesday night with minus 5. The old record was 1 below zero, set in 1910. In the Magic Valley, the low cloud deck kept overnight temperatures above zero this morning.

In Twin Falls, the high was 12 with a 1 below zero low. Some other Magic Valley temperatures include Burley, 12 high and 10 for a low; Fairfield, 12 for a high and a low of minus 19.

In Jerome, the high was 16 and the low was 8 while Gooding reported a high of 18 and a low of 2 above zero. Hagerman had a high of 18 and a low of 4 above zero.

Camas sheriff dies

FAIRFIELD — Paul Cox, 59, Camas County sheriff, died Wednesday in Blaine County Hospital after a long illness.

Harold Lee, deputy, has been acting sheriff since the past two months because of Cox's illness. In addition to Lee there is one part-time deputy, Scott Johnson, who serves as night watchman.

Cox, who has been sheriff about 10 years, was also civil defense director for Camas County and was active in the American Legion.

He is survived by one son, who is on the state police force, and five daughters.

County commissioners will probably appoint a successor to Mr. Cox early next week.

Services will be announced by Thompson Chapel, Gooding.

Sugar paces price climb

By CRICKET BIRD

Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Led by the skyrocketing price of sugar, food costs in Twin Falls rose 22 per cent during 1974.

It was the second year in a row of big food price increases. Prices had risen 21 per cent the year before.

The monthly price survey showed prices rose 3.4 per cent during December, 1974, alone. The survey, checks prices of a 25-item market basket at five Twin Falls supermarkets.

Some items included in the survey stayed at about the same price during all of 1974 — some items, such as meat, declined in cost, and some food items, notably sugar, increased to ever higher prices each month.

Sugar was the super villain for shoppers in 1974. In February, a 10-pound sack was selling at an average of $11.71 at the five stores included in the survey.

The price increased in steady jumps every month until December when the survey revealed a minimal decline of 2.7 per cent in the cost since November.

But the December price — $5.52 for the same 10-pound sack — was still an astronomical 220 per cent higher than the price of last February.

On the other hand, ground beef declined considerably since last February when a pound was selling for an average of $1. The price now averages out at 64 cents a pound, an overall 38 per cent decrease from last winter's price.

One popular brand of bacon was averaging $1.41 last winter. During the year, the price declined to a low of $1.05; then jumped back up to a December average of $1.35.

The prices of eggs and potatoes were also available. Eggs reached a high of 84 cents a dozen last February, dropping off to an average cost in December of 78 cents a dozen.

And potatoes fluctuated wildly from a low of 88 cents for a 10-pound bag this November to a high of $1.90 for the same bag last June.

December average was fairly low, at 98 cents for 10 pounds.

Some other "remember-back-when" prices from last February are enough to make shoppers feel faint.

Like, remember when a pound of one popular margarine sold for 45 cents last winter? Now, the average price for the same pound is 72 cents — an exorbitant 60 per cent increase.

And how about that box of corn flakes that used to sell for 34 cents last winter — now you'll pay at least 50 cents for the same box, a healthy 47 per cent jump.

That can of corn that was a bargain at 28 cents? It's jumped to an average cost of 40 cents now, another 43 per cent increase.

The giant size box of laundry detergent that was selling for 82 cents last February will now set you back to the tune of $1.17, a 27 per cent cost increase.

So it goes, from macaroni to margarine, tuna to toothpaste. And if the gloom predictions of economists are correct, so it will continue to go.

FBI called in to aid price fixing probe

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON—The Justice Department's antitrust division has called the support of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its effort to uncover price fixing around the country.
The new move was made late last year and is too recent to have shown results. While antitrust officials caution against excessive expectations from the step, they are hopeful that more "discoveries" of price fixing conspiracies will turn up if the FBI becomes involved.
Agents at the FBI will not have to become experts in such economic antitrust areas as "oligopoly theory," concentrated industries or corporate mergers. Instead, they are being asked to keep an alert for conspiracies among sellers, small as well as large, to fix prices and thus eliminate competition for a product or a service.

"The typical antitrust agent," said an antitrust official, "does not wake up in the morning thinking of antitrust. We are trying to make them, conscious of the fact that price-fixing is a criminal violation just like financial fraud or kidnapping."
As a first step in the new program, the antitrust division is preparing for the first time a pamphlet for circulation to FBI agents that will deal, according to an internal memorandum, "with the antitrust laws and method of investigating potential violations."
Another step involves participation for the first time of attorneys and others from the antitrust division in training for new FBI agents at Quantico, Va.

"An FBI agent," another official said, "might stop a criminal, serve a legal price-fixing case while he is investigating organized crime. He should be on the watch for this."
The decision to try to make more use of the FBI was one of several steps undertaken by the antitrust division following President Ford's executive message to Congress last Oct. 8, in which Ford said, "I am determined to return to the vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws."
This was one of numerous points in the message and was not given great attention at the time.
Some other parts of that message, such as a proposal for a 5 cent income tax surcharge on better-off taxpayers, are already out of date or have been dropped. But the effort at tougher antitrust enforcement apparently remains a planning, document-drafting, law-writing approach of the antitrust division includes these other items, apart from more use of the FBI:

—A particular look at "industries and commodities" which have had significant price increases within the last year.
—A survey of past antitrust decrees where price-fixing was involved, with concentration on those decrees outstanding involving particular companies or particular industries which have experienced significant price increases to determine whether those recent price increases were in any way the result of collusion.
—A survey of about 50 cities, large and small, to determine how many local real estate organizations still retain a fixed fee schedule.

Boy dies after transplant

NEW YORK (UPI)—A four-year-old boy who underwent a rare auxiliary liver transplant operation at a Manhattan hospital died early today. Little more than 12 hours after the operation, according to a hospital spokesman.
Ricky Place of Brooklyn, Mass., died at 12:40 a.m. WST of "acute kidney failure," at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, according to a spokesman for the center.

Editor unaware of CIA backing

GOSHEN, Conn. (UPI)—Barrett Laschever, former managing editor of Fodor's Modern Guides, a travel guide, said today he was unaware of the firm and its owner were backed by the CIA to claim the Howard Hunt Jr.
"I had no idea anything like this was going on," said Laschever, who worked for Fodor's from 1965 to 1968. "I have no evidence to indicate anything like this was going on."
An interview published Tuesday in the New York Times quoted Hunt as saying that Fodor's travel guide was financed by the CIA and that identified owner Eugene Fodor, a former intelligence agent for the United States in World War II, as a former agent for the CIA in Austria.
"He was at the CIA payroll and may still be for all I know," said Hunt in the interview.
Hunt's comments concerned his testimony made before the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence in 1973 and made public for the first time Tuesday.
Laschever, 50, travel editor of the New York Herald Tribune before he joined the Fodor's firm, and left in 1968 to join the Hartford Times, said his duties at Fodor's required several trips abroad and he worked with Fodor almost daily.
"My duties were the same as any travel editor might have," he never approached the issue or never asked to do

Price views differ

By United Press International.
Saudi Arabia's oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani says the petroleum states are getting a pretty fair price for their fuel exports and won't have to charge any more until 1980.
But an international petroleum marketing secretary, general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, says oil prices are a bargain in these tough times and ought to be increased another 25 per cent.
Yamani said Wednesday the recent increases in the price of oil should be enough to compensate petroleum producers for inflation this year.
"Small, successive increases should not be necessary again until 1978," he told the West German economic publication Wirtschaftswochen of Dusseldorf.
He said Saudi Arabia also opposes production cuts. "I've followed the wishes of those who want production cutbacks and price increases, we would definitely run our Western economy," he said.

"You would then have a depression which would be a serious setback for a long time," he said. "We want to prevent that."
Khomeini, an Algerian whose two-year term as OPEC secretary general ended Tuesday, was asked in an interview with the Paris magazine Economie if he thought the current price of about $10 a barrel was reasonable.
"Personally, no," he replied. "Today continues to be cheaper than the oil of just after the war (World War II). To find that level again, I think the price should rise a little more, by about a fourth of the present price, that is from $2.50 to $3."

Troops smash into Phuoc Binh

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops smashed into the provincial capital of Phuoc Binh today in an offensive that threatened to give control of the entire province to the Communists.

The government appealed for a cease-fire to rescue 26,000 persons in the city but the Viet Cong did not respond.

Heavy street fighting was reported in the town of Phuoc Binh, 66 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border and the government's only remaining foothold in Phuoc Lang Province. Lt. Col. Le Trung-Hien called the situation "critical" and said the South Vietnamese were ordered to hold it at any cost. The Communists hit the city with 800 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire.

The Communists have been able to win control of only one province in South Vietnam in the long years of warfare.

Quang Tri Province near the border of North Vietnam fell three years ago but government forces recaptured parts of it including Quang Tri City in heavy fighting.

A spokesman for Brig. Gen. Phan Hoa Hien, head of the South Vietnamese delegation to the two-party joint military commission with the Viet Cong, said the plea for a truce was sent "on an emergency basis" to the Communists at their headquarters on the edge of Saigon about 2 p.m. today but there had been no reply by nightfall.

An estimated 26,000 soldiers and civilians remain in Phuoc Binh city swollen by refugees from the rest of the province. "Phuoc Binh" was known to thousands of American GIs as "Song Be," when the city was headquarters of a unit from the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division.

Court closes bank files

(c) New York Times Service
SAN FRANCISCO — The California Supreme Court has unanimously ruled that law-enforcement officers may not examine bank records for individuals or businesses without a warrant or a court order.

The decision is the first, the ruling indicated, to state categorically that police officers cannot have automatic access to a bank's records to make a criminal case against one of its customers.

"There is no justification, Justice Stanley Mosk wrote, for such a sweeping exploratory invasion into an individual's privacy."

The ruling, which examines "the intimate and confidential relationship between a bank and its customers, states, finally, that turning bank records over to the police without 'the scrutiny of a neutral magistrate' violates a person's 'reasonable expectation of privacy.'"

The issue of whether banks should keep records and turn them over to the authorities, the judge wrote, has been a matter of controversy for some years, especially with regard to its potential violation of a client's civil liberties.

However, the question whether and under what circumstances these confidential records should be made public has never been fully clarified, he said.

For example, the Bank Secrecy Act, passed by Congress in 1970, compels banks to keep records of all customer transactions and report any financial deal involving more than $10,000 to the Department of the Treasury.

The United States Supreme Court has since upheld the constitutionality of the act, the judge noted.

In the present case, however, the local law-enforcement authorities in San Francisco County, in Southern California, simply requested local banks to give them copies of the records of a lawyer who was under investigation.

At least one bank voluntarily complied and, in time, the lawyer, Wesley S. Burrows, was indicted for grand theft.

The lower court in the case ruled that the records were legally admissible evidence. After his conviction, Burrows appealed the issue to the higher court and last week was upheld.

Proxmire proposes no limousine use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., announced today he would introduce legislation denying chauffeured limousines to all but a handful of top government officials.

Proxmire said his bill would also enforce the existing law which prohibits the use of government cars to take officials to and from work.

Proxmire said about 800 high government officials are now provided chauffeur driven cars.

"This is both a wasteful practice and an outrageous form of elitism in a political democracy," Proxmire said.

Proxmire added his bill would provide "a big car and a chauffeur" only to President Ford, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, members of the Cabinet, Chief Justice Warren Burger, and top congressional leaders.

The President, vice president, and Cabinet members are exempted from the prohibition on being driven from home to work and back home.

Proxmire's bill would extend that exemption to Burger and Speaker Carl Albert. Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott, House Leaders John A. Rhodes and Thomas P. O'Neill, Jr., and Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., president pro tem of the Senate.

No other government officials could be driven home to work to home. They would be required to use pool cars for transportation during business hours.

Mountaineers plant flag

GRAND TETON PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — The American Revolution bicentennial flag, planted by 11 mountaineers who scaled the 13,766-foot summit of Grand Teton Peak New Year's Day, flew in clear, 10-degree-below-zero weather Wednesday.

Paul Petzoldt, 66, the leader of the annual trek up the mountain, said it was the second day the flag was planted on the peak. He said conditions were as good Wednesday as the day before, when six members of his 24-member party first reached the uppermost tip of the jagged peak.

Petzoldt said possible adverse weather conditions could prevent a third trip to the top of the peak today.

"We're very, very happy and well," Petzoldt radioed to Grand Teton National Park headquarters. "The flag was taken up yesterday and today. But the weather doesn't look good to the west and we may not make it tomorrow. We don't want to take any chances."

Petzoldt did not climb to the top either Tuesday or Wednesday, preferring to remain in a hut at the lower saddle at the 11,700-foot level of the mountain.

He said the party would begin descending the mountain today and would be "very thirsty" when it reached the base of the peak Saturday morning. He asked park rangers to meet his party with four cases of beer and a case of wine.

This year's successful climb makes the fifth time Petzoldt's New Year's expeditions have reached the summit of Grand Teton in the 10-year history of the assault.

Hope finders

Christian Science Monitor

You may think you have seen these articles in American magazines. Look again at the USA. "America, Where's Your Backbone?" "Passionism Can Be a Fashion—Good Things Happen, Too." "Still, Have a Nation."

If so, you have a good memory. They appeared 20 years ago during those Eisenhower years that many Americans now look back fondly—as they receive a new wave of exhortations to reject despair and have hope.

Truly wishing could make it so. But you can't have hope without reasons for hope. The best of today's hopefinders are also hope finders. They recognize how the national confidence has been shaken by assassinations, Vietnam, Watergate, and the energy/economy crisis. They recognize that the creative impulse and stamina to solve new problems depend on a conviction that they can be solved.

But these hope finders do not simply cry hope, hope, where there is no hope. They do not minimize the hardship whose alleviation demands national and individual effort based on hope. What they do is to recall the evidence in the lives of most Americans that at least some past hopes have come to fruition. And they offer rational means toward reaching the goals demanded by present adversity and future needs.

In today's Monitor, for example, a fiscal and environmental expert sees the key to the future in a recognition that "morality and self-interest reinforce each other, in a world whose limited resources must be made to serve both rich and poor without mutually-destructive conflict."

For the first time, says Mary E. Strong, director of the United Nations Environment Program, "we have a situation in which the moral, philosophical, spiritual insights of the great religious leaders of the world which used to be thought of as fuzzy-minded idealism—concepts of brotherhood, caring, and sharing—now are preconditions for survival."

Mr. Strong's views are also being the public in the lead article of an extraordinary double issue of the Saturday Review called "An Inventory of Hope" and devoted to "the restoration of confidence." He—and we—find hope in such aspects of the current scene as "the dawning realization of our joint interdependence in caring for and sharing the world's precious resources... the attitudes of young people, in their questioning of the competitive, materialistic values of our society... the courageous experimentation with new, simpler—more human lifestyles... the growing number of positive examples of the way the creative uses of technology, combined with political will, can indeed produce a better and more livable environment."

Mr. Strong goes on to elaborate 10 steps toward further improvement: from better long-range decision-making to developing networks of sustainable urban "ecosystems" as opposed to further city concentration and centralization.

Have Americans actually lost as much confidence as the Saturday Review suggests? Probably not. But the fact that many people think so emphasizes the need for Americans to prove them wrong, just as they did in previous times when the cry for hope went up.

PETER LISAGOR

New year to bring US changes in lifestyles

(C) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — Worldwide economic dislocations, chronic commodity shortages and political uncertainties will force Americans to start adjusting to altered lifestyles in 1975.

The style in clothes and cars will change less often. Do-it-yourself will become more a necessity than a hobby. More people will seek to work beyond pension time to make ends meet.

Life will be "leaner and meaner" for an increasing number of people, scrambling for jobs in markets, living space. "Scarcity" will become a household word and dominate the American consciousness.

But don't despair, says the Research Institute of America—a private organization which provides economic analyses and intelligence to the business community. "Our society is not going back to the hand pump, outdoor privy."

In a staff study on the outlook for the New Year and beyond, RIA says that while the future prospects are not "pleasant," the "sinew and muscle" of the U.S. economy will endure, as will the nation's reservoir of skills, knowledge and capacity to create.

However, the RIA staff asserts that the "new era is here to stay," and the problems it poses consists of "which parts of the economy to keep growing, which to be curbed; where the capital must come from for all the tasks to be tackled."

The problems of recession, inflation, taxation, growth, capital, market changes can no longer be dealt with in domestic terms but must be handled "within the context of our newly contracted world," the study says.

"We've lived like there was no tomorrow, and tomorrow is here," the RIA report notes, adding that 1974 "will go down in the historical record as Nasty Year One."

The report says that Americans feel an unprecedented sense of impotence in the face of such problems as shortages in fuel, food and raw materials; rising population curves; the battle to control inflation and recession; and the effort to regain an equilibrium in U.S. economic growth.

While the "picture of hopelessness is undoubtedly overdrawn," the study says, the "output of gloom must be taken seriously."

The traditional "sense of progress without end or price" has begun to disappear, it notes. "A streak of pessimism is appearing in the American character. We're feeling poorer, frailer, no longer 'indestructible, immortal.' We're running scared into the future—and have every reason to."

It singles out oil conservation as clearly the top priority in the industrial world, emphasizing a "frighting rearrangement of the world's wealth" as a result of the flow of money to the oil producing nations, which has assumed an unreal Alice in Wonderland air. In less than five years, it says, the exchange holdings of the "oil producers"—Exporting Countries (OPEC)—"may be larger than the combined resources of all the major industrial countries."

According to experts cited by the study, President Ford's goal of reducing oil imports by a million barrels a day can be met, and, without a serious economic "disruption at a saving of $4 billion. A U.S. government, analysis contends that "we waste as much energy as Japan consumes," the study says.

Despite the difficulties and the doom-saying, the study says, "No iron command 'roll over and play dead.' Had as prospects seem to be, there is one asset—optimism, realism; alternative courses of action for these major ills. None is painless, cost-free, or easy to manage, but they exist. Any failure will be a failure of nerve, not a lack of alternatives."

"There Has To Be Some Light at the Other End!"

Humor shortage looms

WASHINGTON — I had calls from the Los Angeles Times and the Boston Globe last week asking me what my prediction was for the humor business in 1975.

I had to regretfully inform them that humor economists were predicting a great shortage of humor for '75 and the cost of a barrel of humor might go as high as $14.

A year ago a barrel of crude humor was selling at only $4, and it was difficult to give the stuff away. But then, Watergate, ended, Nixon resigned, and suddenly the country found itself with a shortage of humor.

Since there is more demand for humor now than ever before, the producers and refiners say they had no choice but to raise the price of it for 1975.

At the decline of the humor producers' association in Cleveland, Sherk Russell Baker told the press. "The world has been exploiting humor producers for centuries. There is no reason people should not pay as much for humor as they do for gas."

The Shah of Herlock warned the world that it was wasting its humor.

"By raising the price of a barrel of humor to $14, we might wake people up to the fact that unless strong conservation methods are taken we could run out of humor by 1981. For too long the nations of this earth have been depending on Polish and Italian jokes as their main source of humor. Unless other jokes are discovered soon, we could find ourselves in a very grim world."

The Shah's warning was reiterated by Sherk Art Hoppe, who told the press: "There is just so much humor in the ground, and while we regret that some people will have to suffer because of the new price increases, we have to think of ourselves first. Everyone has been taking humor for granted, as long as the economy was good, people used laughter as if there was no tomorrow. But no one expected 1974 to end so miserably. Now people who used to laugh at anything aren't laughing any more."

One of the reasons for the sharp increase in humor, according to Sherk Hoppe, was that most world leaders have become dull. "It takes twice as much effort to produce a barrel of laughs as it did a few years ago when Charles de Gaulle, Lyndon Johnson, Golda Meir, Gamal Nasser and Ho Chi Minh were in power. You have no idea what it costs to produce one cartoon on Garry Ford. Obviously we have to pass this on to the consumer."

Hans Yaakum, a humor economist, said despite the recent CIA disclosures he saw no relief from high humor prices in sight.

The humor producers are adamant that the price of crude will remain at $14, and refined laughter could go as high as $20 a barrel.

"We're going to have to live with it," he said in a report to the President. "You can't have recession and inflation and expect cheap humor to last."

Yaakum warned the President that if the price of crude humor remained at $14, the humor producers would soon be making $15 billion a year. Unless this money is recycled it could cause grave economic conditions throughout the world.

He suggested the best way for the humor producers to recycle the money with the least damage to the economy was for the United States to sell them Pan American airways.

Foreign spies aren't going to quit business

Moral training

Wall Street Journal

Watergate provided the final push, but other social problems from drug use to rising crime have spurred U.S. public schools to pay more attention to questions of moral and ethical development. A Christian Science Monitor survey found widespread enthusiasm for courses in "moral development," "character education" and "value clarification."

In a certain sense this represents a turnaround in the direction of American education. In the early years schools played great stress on moral and ethical development along with the three Rs. Whatever their other defects, William McGuffey's "Electric Readers" and similar primers sought to impart an ethical consciousness. But directed efforts to impart standards, lessened as American society became more complex and pluralistic.

The revived effort to teach moral principles in schools is, however, not a particularly radical change, even in modern terms. It would be hard for good teachers not to convey a set of ethical and moral principles to their students through their words and example and through their interpretations of literature, science and other academic subjects. By this process, there can be little doubt that schools always have tended to reflect the ethical or moral framework of the society that surrounds them.

We would admit to some concerns over efforts to formalize this process and to make it a conscious and directed part of the school curriculum. In a pluralistic society, specific standards of belief are better set by such bodies as the church, where membership is voluntary, or in the home, the primary state directed schools.

WASHINGTON — When the late columnist Drew Pearson was in his reportorial prime, colleagues used to joke that if he carried across some good news he'd make the No. 1 purveyor of bad, or depressing, news about the national government. He earned a fortune from his exposes of skulduggery in high official places, and his vast readership notably included his enemies and government figures who woke up every morning praying they wouldn't find their names in Pearson's column.

All of which is by way of getting into the latest controversy over alleged improper conduct by the Central Intelligence Agency and the unhappy comment by a resigned CIA official that there is a "massochistic" tendency in American society. Just as so many of Pearson's readers enjoyed the suffering his bad news caused them almost daily, so there are today Americans who get masochistic kicks out of allegations that this or that government agency concerned with national security has behaved badly, or high-handedly.

It is these joyful sufferers, James Angleton, former CIA counterintelligence chief, was talking about in his sorrowful use of the adjective, "masochistic," during an interview with the Washington Post. Angleton was named in the New York Times as overseer of a "massive, illegal" domestic intelligence operation against antiwar activists and other dissidents.

ANDREW TULLY

As a result of the Times story, four Congressional committees are planning an investigation of the CIA. That is as it should be, although the job might better be handed over to one special jury, as proposed by Clark Clifford, a former high official in the Truman, Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

The danger, of course, is that the baby will be thrown out with the bath water. As a spy master, the CIA must be kept wrapped in secrecy. In its charter, the citizenry is asked to place its trust in the agency's integrity and, if you will, its patriotism. It tells us that the CIA cannot operate openly, or periodically tell the people what it is doing. That would defeat its purpose.

Still, the people have a safeguard—or, at least, one is provided by the CIA charter. It is the President of the United States, and the agency is wholly responsible to that President, whoever he is. As an elected official, the President represents the people. He is sup-

Decisions at Vail make Ash winner in long feud

WASHINGTON — Through two days of economy energy discussions at President Ford's ski chalet in Vail, Colo., it became obvious that Secretary of the Treasury William Simon had had his fight for a restrictive, anti-inflationary budget in the face of recessions.

Although no decision was announced by Ford, even Simon's lieutenants concede he is the loser of a year-long struggle with lameduck budget director Roy Ash. The President will support not only income tax cuts but high federal spending to stimulate business, ensuring a budget deficit that could surpass $40 billion.

Both to recoup part of that loss and to conserve energy, Ford last weekend approved a new excise tax on oil imports. That is part of an energy package to reduce consumption and increase production while abandoning the old Nixon-Ford concept of solving the energy crisis by voluntary action.

The must have debate came Saturday morning. Simon made his last pitch for budget restraint. While advocating anti-recessionary tax cuts, the Secretary of the Treasury, warned that federal spending must be checked to prevent perpetual inflation.

But the draft budget for the next fiscal year beginning July 1, Simon declared Saturday, did not begin to cut expenditures deeply enough.

Simon brought up specific budget items he claimed Ash did not trim adequately. Ash, due to leave office after this budget, displayed knowledge of budget details to argue there was no more to squeeze. The consensus: Ash the winner.

Dr. Arthur Burns, who as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board may tighten the money supply if the budget line is not held, back Simon. But Alan Greenspan, the President's chief economic adviser, was considerably less ardent an economist than Simon. In Ash's corner were William Seidman, White House economic coordinator, and the President's political adviser.

These messages to be sent to Congress by Ford this month are a sharp departure from the Republican "oldtime religion" embodied in Ford's Oct. 8 economic message. The remedy of voluntarism to conserve energy was similarly abandoned at Vail.

EVANS AND NOVAK

By the time they arrived Friday morning from Washington, the "energy" policymakers had agreed on almost everything. They did not even include an outright gasoline tax, rejected repeatedly by Ford in the oilpans. A government control plan, limiting and allocating imports, was included but not recommended.

Instead, all agreed on a flat excise on oil imports to cut consumption. Ford approved the rate recommended between $1 and $3 a barrel, as yet set.

Ford also endorsed the rest of the conprehensive energy package including lowered pollution standards. One basic element remains undecided: a proposed floor under the price of oil (as high as $14 a barrel) to encourage expensive oil exploration and production.

What is important is that decisions are finally being made after the long Watergate freeze and Ford's difficulty in taking hold quickly. With the President at his lowest point politically and criticized for spending so much time away from the White House, economy energy policymakers left Vail hopeful he had finally turned the corner.

Escaping past Ford's trouble

BY JOHN HERBERS

(C) New York Times Service
VAIL, Colo. — Toward the end of last week White House aides began to cringe everytime they saw President Ford on television, which was often, skiing down the slopes or walking through the snow for another party with wealthy vacationers.

The reaction was understandable. While much of the nation worried about the recession and inflation, the President was seen day after day on television smiling away from it all at an expensive resort that only a small percentage of Americans could afford in the best of times.

Analysis

The fact that Ford worked as well as played during the time he has been here did not stem from the concern of some of his assistants because the television media, turned to the picture story, preferred the outdoor shots with the President in casual ski clothes in an alpine setting at Christmas time.

Whatever the public image of Ford at Vail, this holiday, the first Ford has taken since he became President Aug. 9, has shown that he has altered his lifestyle — he's doing what he did in past years at Vail — but is caught up in the institutionalized ways of an office that has undergone enormous stress in recent years. His performance there has also provided some insights into how he makes decisions.

As an executive and a man, Ford offers a sharp contrast to his immediate predecessors, but some of his friends and supporters believe he is paying for their excesses.

When Ford works, he works and when he plays he plays and at Vail he has neither a good measure of both, an attitude that students of government have described as healthy for a president. There is no brooding into the night, as Lyndon Johnson used to do during the Vietnam war, never ruling until the American pilots were back — from their bombing missions, but never changing his policy.

There is none of the sullen seclusion of Richard Nixon at his vacation homes. James David Barber, the Duke University political scientist, wrote in his book, "Presidential Character," that Herbert Hoover was "not indifferent to the Great Depression as he was accused of being; but rather that he worked endlessly over statistics and charts in the White House. But the more he worked the less he could bring himself to accept a drastic change of policy."

Ford, in his gregarious manner, opens himself to fresh ideas. Before he left Washington he began having in intellectuals from the universities — Irving Kristol, and a Harvard sociologist, for example — for discussions. He reads five or six newspapers a day and shows no signs of being upset by editorials and cartoons that are harshly critical of his performance. He accepts this as a legitimate part of the democratic system and does not take it personally as have some presidents in the past.

The presidency does not seem to have turned his head. On Christmas Eve, he attended services at interfaith chaplet and stood with the crowd in the rear because he did not want to make those in the aisles clear a path to the Ford pew.

Yet President Ford seems to have difficulty escaping from the past — his own and that of the office.

During the Nixon administration there was widespread skepticism about public decisions being made in artificial settings where the troubles facing most citizens seldom intrude. This was partly due to the fact that public funds had been used to entice President Nixon in luxury on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. President Johnson, who grew rich on business deals while in public office, was criticized for running the country from his secluded ranch.

Vail seems equally as insular. In this setting of Hansel and Gretel Houses and Christmas card scenes the rest of the country seems distant. There was a strong feeling, for example, that neither Ford nor his advisers would come to grips with some of the ugly realities that may have to be faced by disclosure of domestic spying by the Central Intelligence Agency in the Nixon years. It took several days for Ford to decide how to approach the problem.

On Friday, there was the irony of Ford meeting with his advisers on proposals to preserve energy at public sacrifice in a community that consumes energy in vast quantities for luxury.

The past keeps haunting Ford because, in less than five months in office, he has made little change in his own lifestyle and in the troubled institution of the presidency he inherited. Like most presidents since Eisenhower, and other highly paid politicians in Washington, Ford has long associated socially with corporate executives and others of wealth and means.

He has shown no inclination to change this since becoming President. Thus his evening social life here this year has been like it was last, dinners and receptions with old friends such as Richard Ross, owner of vast mine holdings, and James Brown, a group executive of Thakol Chemical Corporation in Tremonton, Utah.

These associations seem to reinforce and continue the political philosophy he formed for many years as minority leader in the House as a representative from Michigan. At 61, his friends do not expect him to change much, whatever his exposure to new ideas.

When Ford brought out his economic advisers for the formulation of new policies on the economy, according to reports coming from the closed meeting, one of the theories that ran through it was a belief that government spending was one of the chief causes of inflation and recession, a respectable viewpoint but one that does not seem to be balanced within the administration by strong and equally respectable dissent as in some outside economic circles.

Of the nine major officials attending the meeting with the President, eight had been appointed originally by Nixon. Although Ford is moving to put in his own government, this was taken as another bit of evidence that Ford has not yet moved his presidency out of the past.

Douglas under intensive care

JUSTICE DOUGLAS suffers stroke

Extension proposed

(c) New York Times Service NEW YORK — A federal panel has recommended that President Ford press the 94th Congress to extend the federal general revenue-sharing program to late 1982 at an estimated cost of $10.7 billion.

The panel also urged that the present general-revenue-sharing law be revised to give state and local governments, which receive the federal share, funds, local discretion, and authority to be spent.

According to several well-placed sources in Washington who have had access to the report, it was discussed at a White House meeting last week attended by representatives of lobbying groups for state and local elected officials.

Secretary of the Treasury William F. Simon and Kenneth R. Cole, head of the White House's Domestic Council.

The group of representatives elected officials included the National League of Cities, the United States Conference of Mayors, the National Governors' Conference and the National Association of Counties.

Apodaca assumes top NM office

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Jerry Apodaca stood without a tremor in 17-degree weather with a light snow falling around him Wednesday and took the oath of office as New Mexico's first Spanish-American governor since 1919.

"Some of you may be wondering what your new governor is doing standing before you today without a topcoat and gloves," Apodaca, 40, standing in front of the Capitol, said. "I want to start out my tenure by showing you that I'm willing to do just a little bit more than you."

The state's 22nd governor promised a "total commitment to serve our state, its people and its future."

"We won't be able to reach any of our goals unless state government is strong," yet sensitive, compassionate, yet wise," Apodaca said. "The level of all — it must be dedicated to the highest goals of all New Mexicans."

A "stirring" but enthusiastic crowd frequently applauded and cheered "Viva New Mexico, Viva Jerry!"

Apodaca, a New Mexico native, first Spanish American to serve as governor in New Mexico since Octaviano Larrazolo held the post for two years starting in 1919. Apodaca won the governorship in the Nov. 5 general election by a 3,742-vote out of 34,002 cast, defeating Republican challenger Joe Skeen.

"Let us unite in a full commitment to a better New Mexico," Apodaca said. "I will make you one promise. I will work as hard as I can — from this moment — until we stand here four years from today."

He said public confidence in elected officials and government must be strengthened.

THE BLACK WINDMILL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice William French Smith, who has served on the Supreme Court longer than any member in history, today was under intensive hospital care after the victim of a stroke suffered during a Bahamas vacation.

The 68-year-old justice, Douglas, has an electronic heart pacemaker in his chest. When he set his record of 34 years, 196 days on Oct. 30, 1971, he said his doctor pronounced him in "fine" health.

"The outspoken justice had just arrived in Nassau with his wife, Catherine, for a short vacation. He was taken to Princess Margaret Hospital.

By an ironic quirk, his way passed smoothly by President Ford, who as House Republican leader led an attempt to impeach him in 1970. Ford arranged for Douglas' physician, Thomas Connolly of Arlington, Va., to be flown to his hotel from Andrews Air Force Base.

Then, by presidential order, a C-9 medical plane was dispatched from Homestead AFB in Florida to bring Douglas to Washington. He arrived Wednesday morning and was taken to Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger notified the other justices.

The first press notice by Court spokesman Barnett McGurn referred Douglas' illness as "an apparent cerebrovascular accident."

"He is currently resting comfortably in an intensive care unit and is alert, although his condition is officially categorized as serious and his vital signs are stable," McGurn said.

Mrs. Douglas stayed with her husband at the hospital.

The justice's electronic heart pacemaker was first implanted in his chest in 1968. The battery-powered device is designed to assure a steady heart beat at a rate appropriate for the wearer Douglas had experienced an abnormally slow rate.

After that, Douglas relaxed his pace, cutting down on mountain climbing and travel to far countries. He and Mrs.

Douglas did travel to China in 1974, thus rebuffing those who had believed for years that "I've had another dysentery three times," he told a reporter in a 1964 interview. That takes some of the motivation out of traveling.

In 1951, during a 20-day journey to the Himalayas, Douglas was hit by a Tibetan yak and by a mule. The mule dragged him 30 yards but he suffered only a sprained wrist and a sore back. It was nothing that doesn't happen to anyone who gets up and down hills," he said afterwards.

In 1949 his horse threw him down a rocky hillside near the summit of Chimney Peak, east of Mt. Rainier in Washington state. The fall broke his ribs and punctured a lung. He was off the bench about six months.

Douglas was a member of the "liberal bloc" during the tenure of Earl Warren as Chief Justice. But over the years, since he came to the bench in 1959 at age 40, he has been known as a disenter, particularly after Burger succeeded Warren.

The Constitution, he has said many times, was intended to take government "out of the backs of the people."

abhorred censorship, loyalty oaths, and electronic eavesdropping.

Time Magazine reported Sunday that Douglas was among those Americans upon whom the CIA improperly eavesdropped. He had taken the agency in task for excessive secrecy and lack of proper interference in the affairs of foreign governments.

"Douglas' intellect has enabled him to be active as an author, outdoorsman, and conversationalist with seemingly little effort while turning out Supreme Court opinions faster than anyone else on the bench.

After 16 hours of deliberation, the jury of eight blacks and four whites returned the verdict in U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's court in the afternoon of the trial. It was 30 months after five men were indicted with hugging equipment inside Democratic Party offices at the Watergate. The five men stood erect and motionless at their tables in Courtroom No. 2 as clerk James P. Caplan read the verdict and a series of "guilty" verdicts.

The convictions brought to 17 the number of Nixon aides found guilty of Watergate crimes. When Parkinson's acquittal was announced, Mitchell turned and whispered congratulations. Haldeman, his wife Jo and their daughter Susan, were typically emotionless. Susan, a law student who sat next to her father at the defense table, broke into tears as she left the courtroom.

"There's only one human being in the world who knows to an absolute moral certainty the truth of my innocence or guilt," Haldeman said outside the courthouse in a dawning rain.

"I know that legally and morally I am totally innocent of each of the charges brought me and with that certainty I can live with myself and move ahead to see that as this process continues the truth ultimately does become known and understood."

Ellrichman and his wife Jeanne embraced at the front of the courtroom six months ago. Ellrichman was convicted of conspiring to violate a citizen's liberties in the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The Ellrichmans called their children in Seattle and then went to the press room. "If there ever has been a political trial in this country, this is it," he said.

As the verdict was read, Mardian turned and stared at the jury. Long after the courtroom cleared, he sat alone at the defense table, his head bent over his arms. His wife Dorothy came, and they left without comment.

Parkinson rejoined Haldeman, shook his hand, Jeanne Ellrichman kissed him.

"A new lease on life," said Parkinson, a Washington lawyer. "I've always had great faith and hope and it worked out."

"I have any reaction?" said Mitchell, putting his pipe with his usual equanimity. "Can't you guess?" Then he joked that he ought "to go to the moon."

Mitchell said he would appeal "for sure." He seemed had "50" issues on which to base the appeal.

Tapes support Dean's memory

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two years ago, John W. Dean III knew he had to make a break. His professional life and his personal integrity demanded it.

He took on the president of the United States.

It was the word of a young, serious-faced, boyish lawyer against the most powerful man in the world and his high-powered, well-known aides.

The odds were prohibitive, and John Dean knew it.

He began in March and April of 1973 to tell prosecutors what he knew about Watergate and its cover-up, a political scandal he was intimately acquainted with.

He was personally and deeply involved.

In June that year he sat stoically and seriously before national television cameras and in a day monotone repeated his story for days to the Senate-Watergate Committee.

Dean had no idea his vindication lay in dozens of reels of tape stored in White House basements.

Those tapes showed how remarkably well John Dean remembered. Virtually

Analysis

Dean recalled that on March 21 he had warned Nixon of "a cancer" growing up "the presidency." When the tapes whirled at the "Watergate cover-up" trial, those words sounded loud and clear.

Dean recalled that he had been involved in a conversation about hush money payments to the Watergate defendants. Nixon stated he had discussed such payments but said they would be wrong.

When the tapes whirled, Dean's memory proved better.

James Nease, the chief prosecutor at the cover-up trial, used Dean's memory and the tale of the tapes to vindicate him in dozens of reels of tape stored in White House basements.

Those tapes showed how remarkably well John Dean remembered. Virtually everything to which he had testified was borne out in the words preserved on plastic that tumbled a presidency.

Women, blacks top 'Gate jury roster

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The jury for the Watergate cover-up trial was predominantly black and predominantly female.

There were nine women, six of them black. Two of the three men were black.

The 12 jurors: John A. Hoffer, 57, the foreman, a retired supervisor in the interior department and the only white man on the jury.

Sandra V. Young, 28, a pharmacist's assistant.

Dock Reid, 60, doorman at the Burlington Hotel.

Clayton E. Carter, 40, office machine operator, at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Ruth W. Gould, loan specialist at the Department of Agriculture.

Chief prosecutor Neal steps down

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chief trial prosecutor James H. Neal announced his resignation from the Watergate Special Prosecution Force shortly after the cover-up verdict.

Neal said Wednesday he would return to Nashville, Tenn., as soon as he can make airplane reservations and resume his law practice.

Neal once prosecuted Teamsters President James R. Hoffa. He twice took leave from his practice to assist the Watergate prosecutors. He was a member of the original force assembled by Archibald Cox and returned last spring to handle the Watergate cover-up trial.

Assistant Watergate Prosecutor Richard Ben-

Veniste, 37, the youngest key lawyer in the case and head of the cover-up task force, said he will take a long vacation. He said he had agreed to consult with special prosecutor Henry Ruth before actually resigning.

Neal talked to reporters reluctantly. "I really don't have anything to say," Neal said. "It's not a happy occasion. We prosecuted as fairly as we could and as vigorously as we could."

"I think we had a fair trial," Ben-Veniste said. "I think we had a fair verdict."

Quick appeals planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The appeals of the Watergate cover-up defendants, probably will be based on the failure of former President Richard M. Nixon to testify at the trial, according to defense lawyers.

Almost immediately after the convictions were returned Wednesday, the defendants or their lawyers said they would appeal within days.

Several defense lawyers said said privately even before the verdict that their appeals would be based primarily on two issues — Nixon's failure to testify and the injection of the 1971 break-in at the office of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Former White House domestic affairs chief John D. Ehrlichman had subpoenaed Nixon's testimony as essential to his defense. Former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman also sought Nixon's testimony.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled Nixon did not have to testify after a panel of court-appointed doctors said the aging former President would not be able to do so until at least Jan. 6.

"There are five days from Jan. 6 and it is a little difficult for me to understand the reason assigned to support that denial," Ehrlichman told reporters.

The defense lawyers said the prosecution's testimony about the Ellsberg break-in served to prejudice the jury by linking the defendants with another crime.

During the trial, John J. Sirica, Haldeman's chief defense lawyer, often said he was putting adverse rulings in his "error bag."

Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell said immediately after his conviction that he would appeal "for sure." He said he had "50 grounds for appeal."

"I have one more error bag than Mr. Wilson," he said.

William A. Hurdley, Mitchell's attorney, and Ehrlichman both listed heavy pretrial publicity as one ground of appeal and the inability to get a fair trial in the District of Columbia.

Here are verdicts from 'Gate jury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The verdicts returned Wednesday in the Watergate cover-up trial:

- John N. Mitchell, former attorney general and Richard Nixon's 1968 and 1972 campaign manager: guilty of conspiracy, obstruction of justice, two counts of false declarations to the grand jury, and perjury before the Senate Watergate Committee. Maximum possible sentence: 25 years in prison and a $37,000 fine.

- H.R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff: guilty of conspiracy, obstruction of justice, and three counts of perjury before the Senate Watergate Committee. Maximum possible sentence: 25 years and $21,000.

- John D. Ehrlichman, former White House domestic affairs adviser: guilty of conspiracy, obstruction of justice, and two counts of false declarations to the grand jury. Maximum possible sentence: 20 years and $15,000.

- Robert C. Mardian, former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign aide: guilty of conspiracy. Maximum possible sentence: 5 years and $10,000.

- Kenneth W. Parkinson, former Nixon campaign lawyer: not guilty of conspiracy, and obstruction of justice.

By United Press International

Politicians generally commended the Watergate jurors Wednesday and said justice in the cover-up trial had been served.

But Dorothy Mardian, wife of Robert Mardian, one of the four men convicted, stuck out her tongue in court and spat out a "Bronx cheer" to protest the verdict.

Some principal figures in the long scandal, including former Watergate prosecutors Archibald Cox and Leon Jaworski, declined comment.

Former President Richard M. Nixon said he would have a statement read and President Ford had no comment.

The four men convicted maintained their innocence and said they would appeal, and the fifth defendant, Kenneth Parkinson, who was found innocent, was dated and said he had a new career in real estate.

Reaction from political leaders was generally subdued. A statement by newly inaugurated New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey was typical.

"The offenses were an attack on the fundamentals of our system and, while we are taking any pleasure in the verdict speaks for itself," he said.

Retiring Sen. George Allen, R-Vt., the dean of the Senate, said, "From the very start of the Watergate case I have said the matter should be left to the courts, the U.S. House and the Senate. I expect they've done their job as they had to."

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-New York, said, "This predominantly black, predominantly female jury has acted with wisdom and dedication to the principles of our democracy. They turned out to be better Americans than the Watergate conspirators, and their leader, Nixon, who used their enmities power against the best interests of the American people."

Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., praised the jury for its "discriminating and sensible" guilty verdict. He said the decision "does show that the jury was discriminating in that it allowed Parkinson to go free."

The definition of conspiracy is very technical. It was almost of the jury to say that Parkinson was on the fringes and not at the heart of the conspiracy," Drinan said.

Rep. James C. Shriver, D-Maine, said, "It shows that the system works. It is just further proof that eventually will out. Our jury found it just, and although ponderous and not always satisfactory, is still, pretty good, and speaks enough when it has to be."

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, said, "The Watergate verdict is not a panacea for the repeated trampling of constitutional democracy."

Tension, emotions grip Sirica court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tension and emotion gripped the defense tables, his head buried in his arms. John N. Mitchell hit his pipe. Young Susan Haldeman burst from the courtroom in tears.

John A. Hoffa, foreman of the jury of nine women and three men, sent word to Judge John J. Sirica at 2:25 p.m. MST that it had reached a verdict.

Unlike most of the Watergate cover-up trial, few members of the public were present.

The wives of defendants H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson sat together. Their husbands sat solemnly at the defense tables.

Susan Haldeman sat in her usual place on a bench inside the bar near her father's table. A law student, she has assisted throughout the trial.

Chief trial prosecutor James P. Nease led assistant Watergate prosecutors Richard Ben-Veniste and Jill Wine Volner to their table.

At 2:30 p.m. Sirica entered, and moments later, Hoffa, juror No. 6, led the jury in. They did not smile.

When Sirica asked if they had reached a verdict, Hoffa said, "Yes, sir, they have." He handed a manila envelope to clerk James P. Capitano.

Capitano and Sirica opened the envelope and looked at the contents for long moments. Nease poured a glass of water. Sirica told the defendants to stand.

Then Capitano began to read the verdict for each of them — Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mardian — "guilty, guilty, guilty."

They stood motionless. When Capitano got to Parkinson and said, "not guilty," Mitchell turned and whispered his congratulations. Jacob A. Stein, Parkinson's lawyer, wiped his eyes.

Then, it was Sirica thanked the jury and wished them "happy new year. Then they left, and he followed soon thereafter.

The wives hurried to their husbands' side. Haldeman rushed over to congratulate Parkinson, Ehrlichman and his wife Jeanne, their arms around each other, talked to their lawyer in the front of the courtroom.

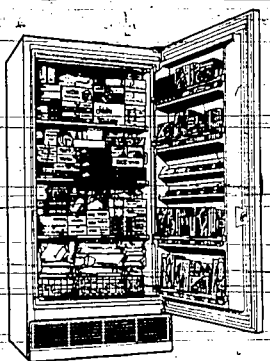

Susan Haldeman started to walk out, and then the tears came.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please settle a controversy over pantyhose? Should you wear pantyhose with or without panties? If you should wear panties with pantyhose, should you wear them UNDER or OVER the pantyhose? (Some people wear them both under and over.) I have asked half a dozen people this question, and everyone has a different answer.

CUISINOUS IN SALEM

DEAR CURIOUS: I say that pantyhose—just as their name suggests—provides both panties and hose, so no panties are necessary. Of course they are worn only once and then laundered (just as panties are), so panties are unnecessary. [P.S. If this answer doesn't satisfy you, ask Joe Namath.]

Joe Namath might know.

DEAR ABBY: Don't give me any lectures, please. I know I did wrong, but I can't undo what I already did. Five years ago I had an affair with a married man. (I am also married.) I regret it now, but here is my problem. My sister-in-law keeps bringing up this man's name in every conversation where she can work it in.

Out of the blue she will ask, "Say, have you seen so-and-so lately?" Or she will mention that she saw his wife. Then she watches me closely for some kind of reaction, hoping to catch me off guard.

What can I do when she does this? I have the strongest feeling that she knows about me and this man.

Should I have it out with her and ask her why she is always bringing up his name? I would like to know if she really knows something or not.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE

DEAR GUILTY: Don't mention this man's name to your sister-in-law unless you want to risk spilling the beans. When she mentions his name, ignore it, and change the subject. She probably knows nothing, and your guilty conscience is working overtime.

DEAR ABBY: We are the natural parents of three happy, healthy children, ages five, six and eight. We are now planning to adopt a three or four-year-old orphan girl, from Korea or Vietnam.

Our problem is my mother. She is adamantly opposed to our interracial adoption. She said: Your daughter will not be

TWIN FALLS—Ballet West of Salt Lake City will give two performances in Twin Falls during a one-week residency in southwestern Idaho. A student matinee is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Jan. 24 and there will be an evening performance at 8:15 p.m. the same day. # Inflation hurts zoos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation, which is driving a staggering economic "lame" over the last year, has reached the nation's animal population and perils the future of zoos in the United States, the magazine "Wildlife" has just issued.

As an example of skyrocketing costs — the magazine said — in 1968, the Indianapolis Zoo acquired three giraffes for $25,000, including shipping and insurance. In 1974 one giraffe cost $22,000.

Ten years ago, top quality alfalfa cost the Cincinnati Zoo $16 a ton. Now it is $100 a ton when available.

Chicago, which uses 100,000 pounds of horseman's feed a year, saw the price it pays double last year from 29 to 58 cents a pound.

The plan to update the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston calls for expenditures of $27 million, and it will cost more than $20 million to build a new zoo in Toronto.

Not only are costs up, the magazine said, but animals are in short supply. With wild reserves in Africa, Asia and Europe dwindling, zoos increasingly have been breeding their own animals. But, the magazine said, and costs today's zoo is not the kind of breeding center needed to sustain healthy species.

The inbreeding that occurs in some zoos may do more harm than good, the magazine said.

For example, in the zoo run at Flushing Meadow by the city of New York, an untrained worker recently released pet skunks and crows into the aviary — destroying any possibility for successful breeding of the birds. In International Wildlife said.

Chaplin knighted by queen

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth Wednesday knighted movie great Charlie Chaplin, novelist P.G. Wodehouse, West Indian cricket star Gary Sobers, and Jager Bannister, the first man to run a four-minute mile.

The awards headed a New Year's honors list top-heavy with sports and entertainment figures.

Jockey Lester Piggott, who rode many of the queen's horses, among his 1,000-plus winners, was given the Order of the British Empire, as was Angela Budgeley, 70, who played the grumpy cook in the television series, "Upstairs, Downstairs."

So were Willie Ormond, manager of Scotland's soccer team in the 1974 World Cup, and John Taylor, who refereed the World Cup final.

Queen Elizabeth makes two awards of honors yearly, at the New Year and on her birthday. They are designed to reward service to the crown or the state by the great and humble alike.

Thus, the British Empire medal went to Harry James, 66, who has tuned the organ at Westminster Abbey for every royal occasion over half a century.

Similar awards went to Janet Wilson, 41, last of a family that has provided the village of Edmont with postmasters for 176 years, and Robert H. Brown, general manager of the Europa hotel in Belfast, target of repeated Irish Republican Army bomb attacks.

Chaplin, a poor boy from the London slums, zoomed to stardom in Hollywood silent films as the tramp, a jaunty little man in oversized pants and shoes, a bowler hat and a bent cane.

He forsook the United States in 1952 for Switzerland, where he lives with his fourth wife, Oona, daughter of American playwright Eugene O'Neill. Hollywood gave him a special Academy Award in 1972.

"In the past he turned it down several times but he is very happy now at receiving the honor before leaving this world," said Nicholas Stavovaris, who is married to Chaplin's daughter Josephine.

He said in a telephone interview that the 85-year-old entertainer is sick in bed at his home in Vevey, Switzerland.

P.G. (Pelham Grenville) Wodehouse is the creator of the omnipotent butler Jeeves and author of 97 books and 18 Broadway musicals. His first novel was published in 1902 and he is still writing at age 93.

What a honeymoon!

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — James and Brenda Harrington were married New Year's eve, and on New Year's day she helped celebrate the occasion by collecting a slot machine jackpot of $25,563.40.

The San Pablo, Calif., couple put a dollar in a machine at the El Dorado Hotel in which the jackpot builds up. The payoff came when four sevens lined up.

"It's a wonderful," Mrs. Harrington said. "What a honeymoon!"

Detroit crimes set 1974 record

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit ended 1974 with a record-breaking 800 homicides — and police predicted the rate of fatal shootings, stabbings and beatings would not diminish in the new year.

"Society as a whole is becoming more violence-prone," said Police Chief Philip G. Tomlin, who last August predicted there would be fewer homicides in 1974 than the year before, when 751 murders were recorded.

He said his prediction was wrong because while execution-style homicides dropped significantly, killings involving two or more members of the same family and homicides considered "justifiable" increased significantly.

Police Cmdr. James D. Bannion warned there was little likelihood the killing pace would slacken.

"The sky's the limit," he said when asked where the deadly trend would end.

He also warned that New Year's Eve traditionally brought a high rate of shootings. In view of that, Bannion said police helicopters were scheduled to be grounded for several hours early today to protect police from snipers.

Police killed 29 persons in 1974, including a 25-year-old breaking and entering suspect New Year's Eve. The man, identified as Cornelius J. Mitchell, 32, of Detroit, was victim No. 400.

WORLDS MOST POPULAR VITAMIN C CAPSULE

At worlds, most popular prices. Recommended by the Orange Bird, Duncan Hines; 50,000 Scourge ridden 17th Century Sailors (at least), all three Swensen's Markets, and 346,432 runny nosed kids. All of these will testify that these oranges are the best Vitamin C capsule ever invented and the funnest to swallow. Even though these oranges are a little larger than the average pill, they are super sweet, juicy and delicious, so they go down without any trouble at all... and one orange only costs a penny more than a cigarette (What a comparison). Why not develop the orange habit and kick the other. Green and Yellow Capsules Too!

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened higher Thursday, the first day of the new year, in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which gained 12.99 points Thursday, was about 1,640 at 10:30 a.m. shortly after the opening. Advances led declines 313 to 62, among the 569 issues crossing the tape.

Observers were impressed with the market's performance the last day of the old year, particularly its ability to absorb tax-selling.

Many were encouraged investors did not go for gold in a big way since a gold rush had been feared. Gold sales were not as heavy as anticipated Tuesday, the first day Americans could buy gold in 41 years.

Wall Street apparently is anticipating some favorable action from President Ford to deal with the nation's economic ills.

Guyana takes over big Reynolds mine

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (UPI)—The Guyana government took over the Reynolds Metal Co. local bauxite mining operation at an agreed price of $14.5 million.

The negotiated price was announced Tuesday night, just hours before the nationalization deadline set a few days ago by Prime Minister Forbes Burnham.

The local suppliers produce about 10 percent of all the aluminum used by the giant U.S.-based company.

Guyana is the world's fourth largest producer of bauxite.

Burnham had said earlier in 1974 that the government would buy out the Reynolds operations by the end of the year and incorporate them with the larger government-owned Guyana Bauxite Co.

GUYBAU was formed about four years ago to operate the former holdings—of the Aluminum Co. of Canada. The new takeover puts the entire bauxite industry of this English-speaking South American nation in government hands.

GFI plans price cut

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI)—CF&I Steel Corp. has announced it will cut back prices on some of its products by as much as $10 per ton.

Company spokesman R. E. Yates said Monday the rollbacks—$10 a ton on rails and $5 per ton on structural steel—would amount to a 17 percent cutback from price increases announced earlier this month.

Yates said adjustments would be made to reimburse customers who had received shipments since the price increases became effective Dec. 17.

Aides named

BOISE (UPI)—The appointment of four vice-presidents was announced Tuesday by Albertson's Inc., of Boise.

They were Robert Will, vice president, meat operations; Alton Clark, vice president, produce operations; Duane Hamilton, vice president, bakery operations; and Robert Payne, vice president, general merchandise operations.

All four reside in Boise.

Suit claims trade limit

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Hackensack, N.J., firm filed a civil lawsuit Tuesday in U.S. District Court, Tuesday, accusing IBM Corp. of restraint of trade and competition.

The suit was filed by the William Marion Co., which retails buys and sells office and bookkeeping equipment, including IBM's data processing machines.

Farm return skids lower

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A combination of sliding prices for some farm commodities and rising costs brought farm returns at the end of 1974 down to 23.3 per cent, the "Farm Income" report said.

The Agriculture Department reported that the average farm income was 30 per cent.

The department said in a report that the farm income was 30 per cent at the end of 1974, down from 32.1 per cent at the end of 1973.

Many leading farm economists in recent years have discounted the traditional parity standard's value as a direct indicator of farm prosperity at any given time.

Changes in prices are a percentage of parity are still widely watched, however, as an indication of whether the farm economy is coming or losing ground.

Tuesday's price report said the overall average of prices received by growers dropped 1.5 per cent from mid-November, largely because of declines for cotton, wheat, cattle, lettuce and soybeans.

Higher prices for hogs and pigs only partly offset the losses.

The decline was the third in the last four months. Farm prices had dropped 1.5 per cent in November, risen 4.9 per cent in October and declined 2.8 per cent in September.

For some farmers, particularly grain growers, mid-November prices were still well above parity. At $4.65 a bushel, wheat was 111 per cent of parity compared with 134 per cent a year earlier.

Corn stood at 117 per cent of parity compared with 100 per cent a year earlier.

Cattle producers, who have been suffering all year, however, were getting only a per cent of parity, or $27.60 a hundredweight, in mid-November, a far cry from the $40.00 a hundredweight they were getting in 1973.

HANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Times are tough for San Joaquin Valley dairymen, and Jack Grimes can prove it.

Grimes, a 1st class dairyman, recently took four 3-day-old bull calves to a Hanford livestock auction yard and put them up for sale.

He received only $4 for all four calves but, when he was through paying the auctioneer his commission, brand fees and charges for loading and unloading the calves, he ended up owing the auction yard 24 cents.

"If that's not bad enough," Grimes said, "I was out the cost of driving to the auction yard, 28 miles roundtrip, feeding the calves for three days and paying a breeding fee of $8 per head. Now I ask you, are dairymen making money?"

Interest grows in beet planting

BEAR RIVER, Utah (UPI) — Paul Holmgren, past president of the Utah Sugar Beet Growers Association, says there's more interest in planting sugar beets in 1975, but the limiting factor is the size of the processing plants.

Holmgren, who is president of the Utah Sugar Beet Growers Association and, still on the executive board of the national group, said Tuesday there aren't enough sugar-refining plants to handle a huge harvest.

"In recent years we've seen two plants close down here, one in West Jordan and the other in Lewiston, so the companies aren't going to let us plant unlimited acreage in sugar beets."

Holmgren said the growers association contracts with the sugar companies to plant a certain number of acres, and once the companies contract out their refining capacity that's it.

"We're hoping the price of sugar will stay up, because our contract is a participating contract. An increase in the net selling price of sugar means a higher return," Holmgren said.

He said the 1974 crop sold for about $10.70 per hundredweight. "This year the net selling price to the refineries is about $20. So we've gained on the selling price, but it's also costing us more to grow sugar beets."

It's one of the toughest crops to raise anyway, and now beet harvesters are up about 300 per cent in cost over the past five years, and heavy tractors nearly double.

"Beet seed, which cost us about $1.25 per pound in 1973, ran about $4 per pound this year. And the 1975 seed will probably run more than $6 per pound."

"Our growers are showing more interest in planting more acreage this spring. I'm jumping my acreage from 60 to 85, and some of the farmers here are talking about doubling their plantings."

But Holmgren says the Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. refining plant at nearby Garland, Utah, only has a capacity of between 250,000 or 400,000 tons of sugar beets a year.

The plant runs 24 hours a day once the refining starts, so you can't add an extra shift. And the companies aren't about to sink another $20 million or more into a new refining plant just because the price of sugar is high this year.

Holmgren says with more farmers planting beets this spring, the price of sugar may drop a little in the near future, once the supply increases.

But he cautions that sugar beet growers, in recent years, have never been able to match their portion of the U.S. sugar quota given them by the Agriculture Department. "And with fewer plants operating this year, it's doubtful we'll make the quota in 1975."

Cowman says beef remains good buy

DENVER (UPI) — Gordon Van Vleck, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, said Tuesday consumers can look for beef to continue as one of the best food buys in 1975.

"Beef production in the coming years will increase at least five per cent over 1974's record output, and that means beef prices will remain about where they now are," Van Vleck said.

"Meat in general, and beef in particular, have been the nation's leading inflation fighter in recent months," the cattlemen said.

"While overall prices of food and other consumer goods increased by more than 44 per cent in the past year, the government's index of beef prices went down by about four per cent from a year ago."

Van Vleck said the association's own survey of beef prices indicated an average reduction of 27 cents per pound since last February.

On a note less favorable to consumers, Van Vleck said feed shortages and continuing inflation pressures for the cattle feeding industry would mean further "reductions" in the supply of ground beef. This could bring some price increases for better quality beef by next spring.

"However, today's record large cattle numbers indicate that 1975's eight per cent increase in beef output will be followed by another increase in overall production in 1976, keeping pressure on cattle and beef prices throughout the year," he said.

"During the past year, Van Vleck said, the livestock industry had suffered cash losses of about $2 billion, plus a loss of more than $12 billion in the value of its cattle inventory.

"Obviously," he inflated feed and other production costs do not drop sharply, then eventually could be substantially decreased cattle production and higher beef prices," Van Vleck said. "For now, however, our loss is the consumer's gain."

Down the corridor, beneath the Orange Bowl stadium, Alabama Coach Bear Bryant, now winless in his last eight bowl appearances, said, "I'm happy for Ara to go out on a winning note, but I'm not happy to see him go."

Parseghian said anyone who was in the Notre Dame dressing room moments after the 13-11 victory "would have seen there's no truth to those reports."

TF invades Minico, entertains Skyline

The Twin Falls Bruins, with the nearly annual jinx safely upheld, try to stay on the winning track in the Southern Idaho Conference against the Minico Spartans at Rupert Friday night and then return home Saturday to play always tough Skyline.

Hansen Thursday night in the lone game of that day. On the Northside, undefeated Carey will be at Dietrich while Camas County travels to Bliss.

Hansen goes next door to Murtaugh in the two Magic Valley league games. In addition to the Carey at Camas County mainliner, the Northside loop offers Hietfield at Bliss Saturday evening.

Parseghian said he thought his team "and our defense in particular stood out in the third quarter, showing in the Southern Bowl game."

Irish take the lead

In the wake of Burley's big 18-point thrashing, Twin Falls will draw the closest scrutiny in the highlight of a 22-game weekend schedule. Twin Falls, a handy winner over Burley in the opener, was ranked No. 1 just before traveling to Burley for the mid-holiday battle. As per usual, the Bruins swarmed out. Only once have they managed to hold that host for a weekend.

The Friday game at Rupert now puts new emphasis on the game since Minico dropped Burley in overtime at Burley just before the holidays. Coach Gerald Meyer has guided his team to two straight SIC wins and they now stand 3-3.

USC gets McKay's No. 1 vote LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California Coach John McKay said after his team's Rose Bowl win Wednesday that his Trojans have "as good a call as anybody" to the national championship.

USC jumped into contention for the top spot in UPI's national rankings with an 18-17 victory over second-ranked Ohio State, Alabama, the No. 1-ranked team this week, lost to Notre Dame 14-11 in the Orange Bowl.

Skyline brings its usually tough zone defense into town Saturday night. The Grizzlies have won a pair of SIC games although pre-season dopests figured they were at about a 10-year low in talent. Minico's task Saturday also will be difficult, the Spartans going to Idaho Falls where Coach Les Roth is working with a bunch of tall juniors — starting four underclassmen — but still giving everyone a tough game and winning a few.

Burley takes the momentum of the Twin Falls upset against Madison Friday night on the Burley home court and then will return an early-season visit to Wood River Saturday. Filer will be at Gooding in a lone SCIC match while Kimberly entertains Shoshone in a little five loop encounter.

The Magic Valley Conference has a full slate with Hagerman traveling to Murtaugh, Oakley going to Castelford and Declo hosting Ratt River. Oakley will be at

Usual combination wins Rose bowl for USC

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — When University of Southern California's football team won the Rose Bowl Wednesday, it was a familiar combination. Pat Haden and John McKay, who have won seven national titles together since their freshman year in high school, teamed up on a 38-yard pass with 2:03 left in the game to spark the underdog Trojans to an 18-17 Rose Bowl win over Ohio State.

"Nobody else went out on the pattern," said wide receiver McKay, the black-haired son of the USC coach. "It was a deep corner pattern. We were throwing deep for the touchdown. I gave the defensive man my best move and Pat laid it right in. I knew I had my man beat."

"He took a little more time than usual on that pattern," said Haden, a Rhodes scholar who like McKay was playing in his last collegiate game.

"The offensive line had to hold just a little longer on the play," Haden said. "He just beat his man."

"It was just a perfect pass," chimed in tight end Jim Orladovich who caught four passes during the day. The man my best move and Pat laid it right in. I knew I had my man beat."

"We didn't come here to play for a tie," said Coach John McKay. "We knew with Ohio State's offense we wouldn't get the ball again so we went for two."

Haden rolled to his right on the conversion, looking for McKay and flanker Shelton Diggs. Haden found the run and hit Diggs just as the quarterback was being hit. "I had decided to run on the play," Haden said. "I saw the guy guarding Shelton come up to me so I dumped it off to him (Diggs)."

"I just did a curl on the inside," said Diggs, a 19-year-old sophomore. "I saw it was crowded so I curled back to the outside. The linebacker guarding me fell off when Pat started to run and I got open. This is my greatest thing. We knew the seniors really wanted this game."

"We were fortunate to win, said, though, McKay, in characteristically quivering with emotion in a packed locker room. "I thought it was a great game between two great teams."

And McKay was most amused that he did it without Anthony Diggs, the star running back, who sat out the second half with rib injuries. "Anthony had an excellent first half," said McKay. "I put up a decent game without him in our offense."

"I called all the plays Diggs and John (McKay) were the primary receivers on the conversion. They were playing us man-to-man and we knew someone would be open."

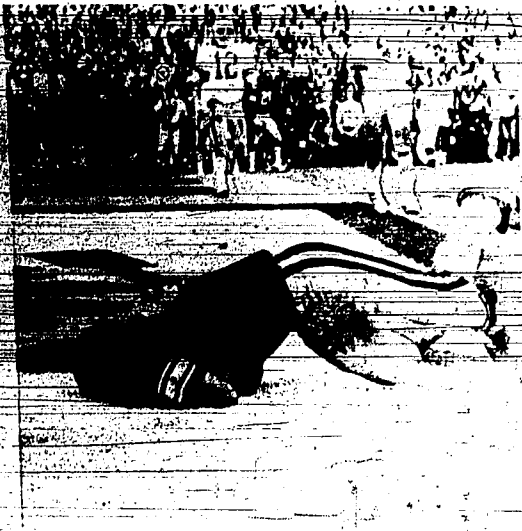

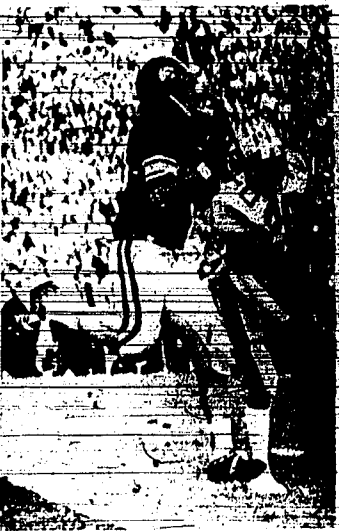

"That was a heck of a dramatic game," he said. "They did exactly what we expected them to do—and quarterback Cornell Greene was leeching us all day."

Asked about his son, McKay smiled and said, "I'm very proud of him. He and Pat have really been playing well for the last three weeks especially. I really love this game," grinned the younger McKay, who caught five passes for 101 yards.

"This was a great and to remember," said Haden, who will coach a pro football career for two years to study at Oxford.

At least one fast buck eludes Hunter

HERTFORD, N.C. (UPI) — Jim "Coffin" Hunter spent New Year's Day looking for a fast buck, but "came home empty handed" from deer hunting just hours after signing a multi-million dollar contract to pitch for the New York Yankees.

"As usual, I didn't get anything," the 28-year-old Hunter said. "I haven't gotten anything this year" deer, that is.

Hunter, who began his pitching career at Perquimans High School here, returned to his home about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday after signing a $1.7 million, five-year contract with the Yankees in New York New Year's Eve. The contract makes Hunter the highest paid baseball player in history.

Hunter rushed home from the signing to take advantage of the last day of the deer season, which opened Oct. 15. He took off at the hunt before dawn with his father, about three of his four brothers, and a few of his local friends. It was dark when the hunters returned home.

There aren't many bucks loose in the vicinity of Shea Stadium, or in the New York metropolitan area, where the Hunters will be making their home later this year and for the next several years.

Hunter, winner of the American League Cy Young Award for his masterful work in pitching the Oakland A's to their third straight World Series triumph, was released from his contract by the Yankees when an arbitration panel decided Finley had breached the contract.

Although Finley is appealing the arbitration verdict, the decision set off a furor among major league clubs, with the Yankees winning by offering the four-time 20 game winner the highest salary in baseball history, and possibly the highest ever given any team player in any sport.

Under the Yankee contract, Hunter admitted "my family has been set up for life" but he went on to say that "it wasn't so much the money" that brought him to New York.

He claimed he "always wanted to play in New York, and now I have achieved that goal along with other things."

The "other things" include fringe benefits such as endorsement contracts, which will be available to him in the New York advertising market, plus the fact that his joining the Yankees makes the club an outstanding choice for the All-American and World Series money.

The team had made a fine late season showing in 1974, and manager Bill Virdon, learning at his home in Springfield, Mo., that he would have Hunter in 1975 could only say "this has got to enhance our chances to win the pennant. If I could have picked anyone, I would add the club. Hunter would be it. I've gotta figure he'll win 20 games."

Hayes takes defeat rather gracefully

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Woody Hayes was a good loser New Year's Day.

The veteran Ohio State coach who isn't noted for taking defeat gracefully said University of Southern California was the best team the Buckeyes have played this season.

"They beat us by one point, so I guess they have to be the best team we've played," Hayes said after a last-minute 18-17 Trojan win in the Rose Bowl.

Hayes wouldn't pick any one incident as the turning point of the game.

"If we hadn't gotten that five-yard penalty when we were inside the USC five in the first quarter, we might have scored. Also we fumbled inside the 10 once and we missed a field goal, too."

"I wouldn't say that call on corner back (Neil Volz) — for spiking the ball — was the turning point. It would be too tough a kid to make that kind of statement."

The Buckeyes were penalized when Colzie spiked the ball after an interception deep in USC territory in the third quarter.

"It was amazing to me to see it called," Hayes said. "I never saw it called before."

Hayes said he was forced to make some changes in the Buckeyes' offense because USC moved its tackles inside.

"They wanted to keep Archie Griffin contained inside," he said. "We didn't expect them to pinch us like they did."

Hayes was lavish in his praise of USC quarterback Pat Haden.

"Pat Haden is a great little quarterback and he can hit the big play. He hit John McKay with a touchdown and hit the curl pattern to Shelton Diggs for the conversion and those were the two big plays."

"That Diggs picked it up just before it fell to the ground. We had the play deflected well and he just made a great catch."

Hayes explained that he engaged in a shoving match with this State's head coach, Artur Jonsson in the game to get Jones "fired up."

"He was not playing particularly good football and he is a good player and capable of playing better," Hayes said.

Hayes noted that his team, which fumbled twice in critical situations, has been played with fumbles all year.

"This is probably the most fumbles we've ever had in a season. I just don't have an explanation."

Celts gain tie for loop lead

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Jabo Hawlicek scored 31 points and sparked the Boston Celtics to a 106-94 National Basketball Association victory over Portland Wednesday night, boosting the Celtics to a first-place tie with Buffalo in the Atlantic Division.

The Celtics, winning their third game in their last four road games, ran away from Portland in the second quarter and had little difficulty holding the Trail Blazers off in the second half.

Hawlicek, hitting on 13 of 24 shots from the floor, also grabbed eight rebounds in helping lead Portland to its fourth consecutive defeat.

After a 20-28 lead in the first quarter, the Celtics took a 37-40 halftime lead. They kept the margin at nine after three quarters, and Portland was unable to overcome the Celtics in the final period.

Center Dave Cowens and guard Don Chaney added 17 points each for Boston with the big post man hauling down 14 rebounds. Sidney Wicks led Portland scoring with 21 points while Geoff Petrie scored 20.

Penalties helped fire up Penn State

DALLAS (UPI) — Penn State was not particularly pleased with the type of football it was receiving Wednesday in the Cotton Bowl game, so the Nittany Lions decided to deal out some of their own — which turned out to be the "take no quarter" variety.

The outcome of the 38th Cotton Bowl turned out to be a psychological effect produced by a yellow penalty flag fluttering in a chilly north wind — one that cost Penn State a touchdown when it was turned the Nittany Lions are up to the boiling point.

From that point — late in the game — the Nittany Lions' offense was in a state of confusion. The offense was in a state of confusion. The offense was in a state of confusion.

third period — the dream of Baylor University to win its first Cotton Bowl trip ever faded under a storm of Penn State penalties which finally ended with the Nittany Lions prevailing, 41-20.

"I think the whole game we had them," said Penn State quarterback Tom Shuman, who played the key role in the game turning moments. "We just kept stopping ourselves."

Penn State, which won its 10th game of the season against only two losses, stopped stopping itself with 3:48 remaining in the third period when Shuman, the Nittany Lions' senior quarterback, led freshman Jimmy Cefalo with a 49-yard pass down the sideline, which put them ahead of the Bears for good at 17-14.

From there the Nittany Lions applied one cruncher after another right up to the time Joe Jackson, a reserve offensive lineman, picked up an inside kickoff at midfield and romped untouched for a score with two seconds remaining, that made Penn State's point production the largest in Cotton Bowl history.

Starr axes aides

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Bill Starr, now coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers, is making a near-clean sweep of the old Packers coaching staff in a move that even one of the fired assistants feels is the right one.

Starr has asked for and received the resignations of all but two of his assistant

The point of dispute came with 6:30 left to play in the third quarter and the Nittany Lions, trailing a 10-7 lead, Shuman, on third and 11 from his own 36, hit fullback Tom Donohue with a screen pass that carried all the way for an apparent touchdown.

But a call of offensive interference was made against Penn State and Jim Ewing for blocking away from the ball. The call was legitimate, but that did not make it any easier for Shuman to swallow.

The quarterback stormed toward referee McHugh Simpson, picked up the flag, and threw it to the artificial turf. "I don't know what came over me," said Shuman. "It's Simpson said 'you've been it all day.' I didn't think he had been doing too good a job all day, either."

The outcome of all that was a Penn State punt from its own 11 and Baylor quickly scored on a 45-yard pass from Neal Jeffrey to Ricky Thompson — a pass which was tipped into Thompson's hands by defensive back Mike Johnson.

When Penn State took the field again they were ready to do some damage. "We got fire in our eyes," said Cefalo, who caught only six passes during the season. "You could feel the intensity in the huddle."

Only six seconds after Baylor had moved in front on the tipped pass, Shuman, who completed 10 of 20 passes for 225 yards, hit Cefalo with their touchdown connection.

From there Cefalo scored on a three-yard run, Chris Bahr kicked his second field goal of the day — a 33-yarder — Shuman scored on a two-yard plunge and Jackson picked up a touchdown on his freak kickoff return. It added up to 38 second half points and 24 in the final quarter. Donohue had scored the Nittany Lions first touchdown early in the third period on a one-yard run.

Baylor, Southwest Conference champions for the first time in 50 years, dominated play by a slight margin in the

Utah rips Las Vegas

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah moved ahead by a dozen points early in the first half Wednesday night and rode the scoring of center Charles Menatti and guard Tucky Burden to an easy 101-77 win over Nevada-Heno.

Utah led 42-29 at halftime and, faced to a 40-point lead midway through the second half as the Utes continually broke the Wolfpack's press and hit with ease over their zone.

Menatti left with a game-high 25 points and Burden had 24 when Utah Coach Jerry Pimm pulled his starters. Pimm let five freshmen play most of the final 41 minutes.

Burden scored 16 of his points in the second half and Menatti 13 before they were pulled just past the midway point. Dean Porter added 14 points and seven other Utes got on the scoring column.

"Jerry Campbell scored 10 points to lead Nevada-Heno and Kevin Goetz had 10. Peter Pajoloff added 15 points before fouling out with 10 minutes to go.

The win increased Utah's record to 8-2 for the season. Nevada-Heno is now 7-3.

opening half and held a 7-0 lead thanks to a four-yard run by little Steve Benird — who gained 75 yards on the ground during the first two quarters. But in the second half Benird could gain only six yards, a fact which symbolized the Bears' frustration during the final two quarters. The Bears finished 4-4 for the year.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JANUARY 3, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can get together with those whom you wish to have much association in the future, and they arrive at a new and improved understanding with them. Everyone should be cooperative now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) With a different approach, you can solve problems difficult before. Let go of old ideas no longer useful to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listen to what a family tie has to suggest who thinks along more modern lines than you do, and improve your situation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Steer clear of the ally who can be very depressing right now, and look to the ally who can be very depressing right now, and look to the ally who can be very depressing right now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Forget problems now and hit on a good idea with the aid of the one you love. Much happiness can be yours by evening.

HERMIO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) But aside old interests for a while, get into the new, that you can handle easily and profitably. Listen to partner's fine ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Home or office duties are best today since you are apt to have difficulty in the outside world. Listen to co-worker's suggestion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find a better way to get your creative plans working properly, and don't waste any valuable time. Get in trim for 1975.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen to ideas of kin as to how to have more popularity in the future. Be careful where money is concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid one who is in a depressed mood and don't permit some stupid person to get you down. Read newspaper for data.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Steer clear of a co-worker who gossips. Listen to what a business expert has to suggest. Forget sorrows tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A partner has good ideas which coupled with your own good judgment can be made to pay off well now. Avoid coming a cropper.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should be taught early to stand on own two feet and not rely on family so much. Give as modern a course of education as possible to insure a fine success in life here for this New Era product of humanity. Teach early to pay attention to the important things first, or this youngster could get embroiled in details and lose out where it counts most.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

What a yawn does is tone up the muscles in your mouth, chest, back and arms. Or so say the science boys. Tend to restore your energy, too. Remember that. Should the chairman-of-the-board catch you yawning at your desk, tell him about it.

THAT MERCHANDISE known as the "grocer" in early times was called a "grocer" because he sold commodities in "grocery" umbrellas, says our Language man.

VOICE of the great blue whale, largest critter ever to inhabit the earth, can be heard under water for 100 miles.

HALF the Coloradans live in Denver, I'm told.

WORRISOME

What are the 25 most worrisome events that can happen in the life of a person? A team of scholars undertook an extensive study to find out. They concluded all such depressing occurrences are highly personal. In descending order of importance, they listed: 1. Death of a child. 2. Death of a spouse. 3. A jail sentence. 4. Infidelity of a spouse. 5. Big financial problem. 6. Business failure. 7. Getting fired. 8. Miscarriage or stillbirth. 9. Divorce. 10. Marital separation. 11. A court appearance. 12. Unwanted pregnancy. 13. Major illness in the family. 14. Out of work for 30 days. 15. Death of a close friend. 16. A demotion. 17. A major personal illness. 18. Beginning of an extramarital affair. 19. Loss of some valuable object. 20. A lawsuit. 21. Failure in school. 22. Child married without family approval. 23. A broken engagement. 24. Necessity to make a large loan. 25. A son drafted. How many of these unfortunate happenings have you experienced?

HERO CITY

Q. "Where's Hero City?" A. You mean Leningrad? That's what citizens there have called it since the German siege in World War II.

"NETWORK TROUBLE" please stand by" is not the worst TV program on the air, contends a Kentuckian. Even worse, he says, are "A paid political announcement" and "Now a word from our sponsor."

IF ALL the known planets except Jupiter were ground up into sand and poured into a sack, that sack still would be smaller than Jupiter itself.
